Support CUPW

The 54,000 members of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) are holding a series of rotating strikes across Canada to highlight their pressing issues while negotiating with Canada Post. The corporation has ignored postal workers' major demands while insisting on a vast array of concessions. Postal workers are struggling to maintain fair and healthy conditions at work, which include the right to decent wages and benefits, retirement security and pensions. All these rights are important to all of us regardless of being unionized or not; however, these basic rights of working people are under attack by employers and governments.

CUPW has a long history of standing up for workers' rights in Canada and around the World. CUPW has supported working people from Palestine and Iran to South Africa and Colombia for workers' and democratic rights.

International Alliance in Support of Workers in Iran stands in solidarity with CUPW as they have stood in defence of the rights of all working people in Canada and around the world. We will post CUPW statements on our websites, blogs and social media, in different languages, and we encourage our colleagues and associates in Canada to Walk the picket line with CUPW members or join in other activities.

An injury to one is an injury to all.

The struggle continues.
